Nightmarish Stories About Common Medical Errors

Medical errors are the third-leading cause of death in the U.S. among adults, right after heart disease and cancer. While we've all probably heard horror stories about surgical instruments being left inside a person's body or the wrong limb being amputated, these types of mistakes aren't very common. However, medical professionals are human and are prone to making common mistakes. For information about common medical errors, click here.

What to Expect During a Breast Cancer Screening

Sponsored by the National Breast Cancer Foundation, October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month. People of all ages wear pink to remember and honor loved ones lost to this vicious disease. One of the best ways to prevent the spread of breast cancer is to educate people about the importance of breast cancer screenings, as early detection and treatment is key. Learn what to expect during a breast cancer screening here.
