Spotting the Symptoms of Pediatric Sepsis to Save Lives

Did you know that pediatric sepsis is responsible for more annual deaths than childhood cancers? Sepsis is among the leading worldwide causes of death for babies and young children. In the United States alone, approximately 75,000 children develop sepsis every year. April 16-22 is Pediatric Sepsis Awareness Week, a time to spread awareness to save young lives. In this article, Pegalis Law Group, LLC examines the facts about pediatric sepsis, including how to spot the symptoms in babies and children.

"Just recently I referred a difficult medical malpractice case to your office. I really cannot thank you enough for all you have done. From start to finish, I appreciated the professional way that you and your office handled this matter and kept me informed. You have truly lived up to your reputation for hard work and excellent results. The confidence I had in you, and the manner in which you handled every aspect of the case left me with no doubt as to a successful outcome. I look forward to working with you again in the future."
